PARK THEATRE

MAJOR BUILDING WORK BEGINS

WELCOME

Spring is finally here and along with it the start of our major construction work. As mentioned in the December newsletter lots of non-visual work has been carried out and very soon you will be able to see the progress. We are still on track to open in Spring 2012. The hard hats are coming out and steel toe boots are primed and ready. Keep an eye on our daily blog for more day to day action. www.parktheatre.co.uk/blog and, if you haven't already done so, check out our latest video, with architects Hughes Jones Farrell, here: www.YouTube.com/theparktheatre

We are very pleased that so many local residents have noticed our banner and have approached us to say hello and find out ways in which to get involved. This is exactly the warm welcome we love about Finsbury Park. So please do keep coming forward, add your name to the mailing list, join the volunteer usher scheme, talk to us about getting involved etc...

PROJECTS

N4 Stories, our project lead by writer-in-residence, Sarah Rutherford, has been a huge success.

The goal was to find stories from the local community and - with the help of lots of fantastic North London actors - we have managed to do it. Sarah is working hard on writing the script and continues to work with the N4 Stories actors in order to devise and develop the story.

EATING AND DRINKING

The Park Theatre is going to have an all day cafe and bar. So when you are longing for a cool drink in a unique atmosphere close to the station, remember - that day is just around the corner!
